Preservation Action is a 501(c)4 nonprofit organization created in 1974 to serve as the national grassroots lobby for historic preservation. Preservation Action seeks to make historic preservation a national priority by advocating to all branches of the federal government for sound preservation policy and programs. Through programs like the annual National Historic Preservation Advocacy Week and monthly calls with state and local preservation organizations, we aim to empower a grassroots constituency with information and training they need to be directly engaged with their elected representatives. The National Conference of State Historic Preservation Officers (NCSHPO) is a 501(c)3 nonprofit organization representing the State government officials, known as State Historic Preservation Officers, or “SHPOs,” who carry out the national historic preservation program as delegates of the Secretary of the Interior pursuant to the National Historic Preservation Act of 1966. The NCSHPO acts as a communications vehicle among the SHPOs and their staffs and represents the SHPOs to the federal government, national preservation and preservation-aligned organizations, and other stakeholders. For more information, visit www.ncshpo.org or contact Christina Hingle at hingle@ncshpo.org or at 202-624-5476.

The National Association of Tribal Historic Preservation Officers (NATHPO) is a non-profit membership organization of Tribal government officials who implement federal and Tribal preservation laws. NATHPO empowers Tribal preservation leaders protecting culturally important places that perpetuate Native identity, resilience, and cultural endurance. Connections to cultural heritage sustain the health and vitality of Native peoples. We provide guidance to preservation officials, elected representatives, and the public about national historic preservation legislation, policies, and regulations. We promote Tribal sovereignty, develop partnerships, and advocate for Tribes in governmental activities on preservation and funding issues. Tribal Historic Preservation Officers (THPOs) have the responsibilities of State Historic Preservation Officers on Tribal lands and advise and work with federal agencies on the management of Tribal historic properties. THPOs also preserve and rejuvenate the unique cultural traditions, practices, and languages of their Tribal communities, and frequently serve as their Tribe’s repatriation official. For more information, visit www.nathpo.org or contact Valerie Grussing at valerie@nathpo.org or 202-628-8476.

The National Trust for Historic Preservation is a privately-funded charitable, educational and nonprofit organization chartered by Congress in 1949 in order to “facilitate public participation in historic preservation” and to further the purposes of federal historic preservation laws. The intent of Congress was for the National Trust “to mobilize and coordinate public interest, participation and resources in the preservation and interpretation of sites and buildings.” With headquarters in Washington, D.C., nine field offices, 27 historic sites, more than one million members and supporters and a national network of partners in states, territories, and the District of Columbia, the National Trust works to save America’s historic places and advocates for historic preservation as a fundamental value in programs and policies at all levels of government. The National Trust Community Investment Corporation (NTCIC) is a for-profit subsidiary of the National Trust for Historic Preservation and enables tax credit equity investments that support sustainable communities nationwide. NTCIC places qualified tax credits for federal and state historic (HTC), new markets (NMTC), solar and low-income housing projects. Since its inception in 2000, NTCIC has provided tax credit financing nearly $2 billion in capital to community development investments for over 200 transactions, with over $7 billion in total development costs. NTCIC is the historic tax credit industry’s leading advocate for improving and expanding the use of federal and state HTCs, having organized and chaired the Historic Tax Credit Coalition since 2009. NTCIC is also a nationally recognized leader in enhancing the use of federal programs in support of preservation and a leading proponent for federal tax incentives supporting community development.
